BBJ announces Top Corporate Contributors

Staff Boston Business Journal

The Boston Business Journal on July 8 announced the area's top corporate charitable contributors, companies that gave at least $50,000 to local nonprofits in 2010.

"Our research shows that the Boston business community has retained its strong commitment to community involvement and partnerships with local nonprofits," said Chris McIntosh, publisher of the BBJ. "We look forward to honoring these companies at our annual Corporate Citizenship Summit on Sept. 9."

The BBJ's Corporate Citizenship Summit (visit the link for more information) is the region's top celebration of corporate civic engagement.

Aside from recognizing top corporate contributors, the event also recognizes outstanding partnerships between companies and nonprofits and awards an annual CEO Social Leadership Award to a local executive who has led his or her company to an exemplary record of community services.
