

Business Journal names Healthiest Employers 2014

The Boston Business Journal today announced the finalists for its fourth annual Healthiest Employers program, which will be held March 27 at the Ritz-Carlton Boston Common.

The BBJ is honoring 30 individual companies for their efforts in maintaining and improving employee health.

"A healthy workforce is obviously a sign of a healthy company," said BBJ Publisher Chris McIntosh. "They go hand in hand. Our awards and event will spotlight what area companies are doing to help their employees thrive on the job, and, in turn, boost morale and productivity."

The Healthiest Employers finalists are chosen through an assessment process consisting of 75 scored questions that are completed by the participating companies. This year's finalists, in alphabetical order, are:
